

REMARKS

Applicant respectfully requests reconsideration of this application as amended.

Objections to the Specification

The specification is objected to by the Examiner for allegedly failing to clearly describe the disconnection of the memory from a first computer. Applicant respectfully directs the Examiner's attention to page 2, lines 28-32; page 3, lines 13-17, and page 4, lines 21-29. The specification describes a transportable volume acting as a local environment repository. (p.2, ll.29-30) Within the volume is a data file containing all the elements of the original operating environment to be simulated by the host computer. (p.3, ll.13-14) The system allows the user to exactly replicate the typical computing environment in which the user operates. (p.4, ll.21-24) It is well known in the art that an "operating environment" or "computing environment" includes a computing device or computer. Thus, one skilled in the art would appreciate that the typical computing environment to be replicated would function on a first computer. The transportable volume would be attached to the first computer. In order to connect the volume to the host computer, it would be disconnected from the first computer. Accordingly, the specification clearly describes the disconnection of the memory and a first computer at least in the locations cited.
